WOMEN'S WOES.

Norway Women Are Finding Relief at Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing-down pains; they must stoop over, when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Sick kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and much suffering is saved. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that is endorsed by people in this locality.

Mrs. J. J. Monk, Myrtle St., South Paris, Me., says: "Often my back became so lame and sore that it was difficult for me to stoop or arise from a reclining position. I knew that my kidneys were at fault, and although I tried a number of kidney remedies, I was not helped. Finally I used Doan's Kidney Pills and found them to be a preparation of merit. After I had finished the contents of two boxes my trouble disappeared."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States.

CHILDREN IN SCHOOL Cannot progress in their studies as they should if eye-strain is sapping vitality from other parts of the body. The Hunting Season.

Now is the time when, if you're a sportsman, you take your gun in your hand, and pack your grip and start for the trap. Be sure for the best of the land.

We need not say what there is in your grip. Or name the kind of goods; We should know you're out for a game Of hide and seek in the woods.

A sweater you'll have of flaming red And maybe a hat of some blue, Or green, or yellow, or pink or rose; Most any bright color will do.

So long as it shines through the tree trunks Or the leaves, now yellow and browned, For in playing hide and seek in the woods The game is, how to be found.

So after arriving at camp at night You start out early next day, With your gun encased in your flannel clothes And looking quite nifty and gay.

Of course you know the rules of the game But the guide tells them over again Which makes you forget in the woods There's rather less deer than men.

So when you sailly forth with your gun Just keep yourself in view Don't shoot at another. And be equally sure another don't shoot at you.

Remember that the bushes will sometimes stir And game not anywhere near, And you are ready to leave The guide will shoot you a deer.

And hearing these precepts well in mind And never losing your gun over again, You will come from the woods alive Than being brought out dead.

Rejoicing.

There's never a rose in all the world But makes some bird wing flutter; There's never a wind in all the sky But makes some silver ruddance tender; And never a rosy cloud but helps to lighten the sky.

No robin but may thrill some heart, His dawn like gladness voicing, No bird but may some sweet way To set the world rejoicing.

The Lesson of Autumn. Autumn comes with its golden fruit and sheaves of grain and corn; and many, many, many beautiful things it brings whenever it comes. 'Tis a reminder, too, of what is to come. The cricket is chanting a dirge to the dying year, and the leaves are falling in its funeral, but they, too, tell us the year is dying. When the sober and mellow days of autumn are passing, do we not like to go back, upon the pinnions of memory, to the scenes and enjoyments of other days? Do we not like to retrace our footsteps along the journey of life, to call to mind the sunny scenes that flitted from our vision, like the gay but withered leaves of the departed summer which we can now see from our window, floating with a low but mournful whisper on the breezes.

Childhood days are the springtime of life; then summer comes to us with all its joy and hopefulness. If our lives are all like a summer's bright sunny day, we should never look higher, than the earth. Everything would be so beautiful that we would not think to pause and ask who made them so. Aye! Autumn comes to remind us that we cannot always live in this world of joy, and that we cannot always have sunshine without shadow while we do live. I think it tells us plainly that we shall soon approach the great gate which opens from time into eternity. Soon we shall have to survey the vast vistas, through which our wayfaring has lain, as the traveler pauses at sunset to look back upon the dim but distant landscape that he has traversed. [Maine Farmer.

"Silver Threads Among the Gold," was one of the popular songs of 40 years ago. It has "come back" with phenomenal vigor and is being sung today throughout the land.

Aviation in War.

When the submarine became a military success, a thrill of horror passed around the world for it seemed as though no floating craft could possibly protect itself against this unseen foe of the deep. What there was of a great possibility for effective work with submarines, they are no longer feared as they were at first.

Although it is too early to claim a parallel in the case of the aeroplane in war, it is coming to be generally conceded that the dirigible as a military arm, is rapidly losing its terrors, though for a year all England shuddered every time it looked into the sky and dreamed of a German invasion. The waiting reputation of the dirigible as a military arm, is emphasized by the destruction of the military aircraft built by the British Government.

Its construction was purposely delayed in order to take advantage of the experimental and experienced of other countries, and built at a cost of $400,000, this mammoth of the air—for it was 512 feet long—represented what seemed to be the best in a military airship. Yet it collapsed in a 9-mile breeze as it was taken out of its hanger for a trial.

A great airship such as Count Zeppelin has been operating the past summer is a wonderful creation. As it comes up through a valley with mountain peaks on either side it moves toward one with an approach like a cloud driven before a gale.

Then as it passes overhead the sound of its propellers and the trail of smoke from its engines take it out of the realm of the fantastical; but there is left a feeling almost of awe. Not one of the assembled thousands seemed prompted to cheer; few spoke to their companions. The multitude were silent. Notwithstanding all this there is left in the mind of the observer the positive impression of the frailty of the device and its inability to cope with storm, or the value of its service as a war machine. The dirigible, at present, must have enormous bulk to afford any considerable lifting power; and bulk spells the toy of the winds. Even birds seek shelter from an approaching storm.

The aeroplane has made some good records this year, and the long-distance flights have been greatly lengthened, yet so far I fail to recognize any specific performance by any aviator, with the time of war would have stood between victory and defeat.

As an aerial scout the aeroplane will doubtless find a place for itself, but as a fighting machine—well, nobody seems anxious to fire the first big gun, for the recoil and vacuum of its own discharge are things to consider. Can it be possible all our pictures of aerial warfare are only dreams, and that the aeroplane will settle down to a disgracefully safe and prosaic vehicle, used chiefly on farms to fetch the doctor, or some repair part for a broken reaper?

However, the French, with 200 military aeroplanes on hand and 120 building, are extremely sanguine. General Chon declares that the flying machine is "the most marvelous engine of war we have yet discovered."

General Bonneau characterizes it as "an eye that makes no mistake, that looks down on the enemy and permits one to see all that is passing in his line," while Colonel Bernard says, "Two batteries with an aeroplane are five times as formidable as three batteries without an aeroplane." [November Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Pottery Industry Increasing. The manufacture of pottery of various kinds has grown to an enormous industry in the United States, and it was in a highly prosperous condition in 1910, according to a report by Jefferson Middleton, just published by the United States Geological Survey. The product was valued at $39,754,078, a gain of $2,735,238, or 8.31 per cent over the figures for 1909. This is the greatest value ever reached, exceeding by $2,343,794 the record figures of 1908. Compared with earlier years the increase is yet more striking. In 1899 the value of the pottery products of the United States was $17,250,250. The product for 1915 was greater by $16,534,420, a gain of 95.98 per cent. During the same period the imports increased 40.73 per cent.

The pottery products of the United States, as classified by Mr. Middleton, consist of red earthenware (flower pots; yellow and Rockingham ware (ordinary utensils, teapots, etc.); cream-colored ware, white granite ware, semi-porcelain and semi-white ware, and china. Its various forms (general household wares, such as tableware, toilet sets, etc.); sanitary ware (bathtubs, lavatories, wash-tubs, etc.); and miscellaneous wares, including art pottery made under various trade names, crockery, chemical pottery, faience, pipes, stoves and spurs for potters' use, porcelain door knobs, porcelain hardware trimmings, porcelain lighting appliances, smoking pipes, toy marbles, turpentine canisters, umbrella stands, filter stones and tubes, and shuttle eyes and thread guides.

Giant Cheese Weighs over Five Tons. The World's largest cheese, 8 feet in diameter and 5 feet high, weighing slightly over 12,000 pounds, was recently manufactured at Appleton, Wisconsin, the services of more than 40 expert cheesemakers and their experienced helpers being required for the job.

The November Popular Mechanics Magazine says: "The cheese, which was made for exhibition at the National Dairy Show at Chicago contained exactly 12,000 pounds of curd, 330 pounds of salt and 81 pounds of rennet, making the finished product weigh 12,381 pounds, three times larger than the biggest cheese ever before manufactured."

The curd came from 32 different cheese factories, and the milk, 15,000 gallons in quantity, from over 1,200 farmers and was produced by 8,000 pure bred Holstein and Guernsey cows valued at $1,500,000. The greatest care had to be taken to insure the curd being uniform."

It required but a suggestion from Pres. Taft of the State Ecological Society for the Maine Central Railroad to grant excursion rates over all its lines in Maine to the fruit show. In August, Nov. 14, 15 and 16 under the auspices of the State Ecological Society, the fruit show was held at Bangor. It made the same concession so that every indication points to a large attendance from all parts of the State.

Women Who Make Artificial Flies

One of the first women, perhaps, to make dies in large quantities in Ausin-ton was Miss Carrie J. Brown, a widow and a native of Fryeburg. At first she began making flies for fishing, as a sort of side issue, and as her fame spread, orders increased, and in recent years she has conducted a large establishment of her own. She employs a large number of girls and women, all of whom she taught herself, and the flies supplied to the trade by her are well liked.

Another woman who makes flies as a business is Mrs. Anna Keene of Queensbury. She is the widow of John Harrington Keene, who wrote so many books and articles on fishing and rod and tackle making. Mrs. Keene is fond of fishing, especially fly fishing, and takes a lively interest in the success of her clients. She employs a number of girls by anglers who fish with her flies, which are superb, especially those made for fly fishing.

In Los Angeles lives still another woman who makes flies for a living. This is Mrs. Frances Brown, a widow and formerly a school teacher, who hit on the idea of preparing flies for the trout from the camp aunts of her pupils, who told her how the fish ate the bait, but escaped
the hook.

She began by fashioning worms of silk,
wool, thread, floss and chenille, and her wares were put on sale in stores dealing in Sportmen's goods. After a trial the fishermen came back enthusiastically for more and several of her friends gave Mrs.
Brown suggestions which enabled her to extend her business. Now she has a half dozen girls working for her, and even then she hardly can keep up with the orders. The bait is made so skillfully the oldest and wisest trout are deceived. —[Maine Woods.

OTISFIELD.

Nellie Latulip is sick with mumps.
Mrs. Jennie Scribner picked blueberries Oct. 10.

Most of the farmers are busy packing
their apples.

Mrs. Etta Warren is in Milan, N. H., teaching school.

School closed for a few days on account of mumps at Spurr's Corner.

George Hoyt and family have moved into R. S. Lombard's house at Spurr's Corner.

George Hoyt sawed off part of his thumb in Jesse Scribner's mill one day
last week at Harrison.

Henry Maxfield and his sister Mrs.
Lizzie Harriman of Etes Falls called on Eugene Edwards last Sunday.

Mrs. H. Edwards recently saw strawberry blossoms, dandelions and a second crop of raspberries; look out for a light winter.

A Million Dollar Masonic Temple.

The cornerstone of what Sovereign Grand Commander Richardson of the Scottish Rite Masons of the southern jurisdiction, said would be the "most dignified building in the world designed alone to the cause of Masonry" was put in place Oct. 18th, at Washington, D. C., with elaborate ceremonies.
It is to be the National home of the Supreme Council of the southern jurisdiction of Scottish Rite Masons. The first stone was laid with the trowel and square used by George Washington in beginning the United States Capitol.

Prominent members of the order from all parts of the United States attended the ceremonies.

The stone having been laid and all the speeches having been concluded, ex-Senator Henry M. Teller of Colorado and Erasmus T. Carr of Montana, the two oldest members of the Supreme Council, spread a little talk on the big block of granite with the Washington trowel.

Among the objects placed in the corner-stone were an American flag, a Bible, jewels of the Lodge of Perfection
1880 and '32 degrees and of the Blue lodge
Tessie was also a photograph of the late Rear Admiral Sculley, who was created a 32nd degree Mason several years ago in the southern jurisdiction.

The building, which is to cost more than $1,000,000, will be completed in about a year and a half. Its 33 huge pillars, its 33 steps and other features will make it thoroughly symbolic of Masonry.

Storing the Summer Bulbs.

Do not dig summer roots too early,
for if they are not allowed to mature
and ripen, they will not keep well.
They are safe in the ground so long as they do not freeze. When they are dug keep the stalks on them in a shed or some such sheltered place, and allow them to dry for a few days.

If the weather is pleasant let them
lie in the sun, covering them at night
with old carpet.

Canna-roots keep well if packed in dry earth and sand, and placed in a dry cellar. They also may be wrapped, each separately, in paper and then placed in a bag and hung in a frost-proof cupboard.

However, as canna-roots are subject to dry rot, they should be examined
from time to time and as soon as decay shows itself, separate the sound from the unsound.

Dahlia-tubers are as easily kept as potatoes, and should be given like conditions. Give them a high shelf in a cool, moist cellar.

Gladiolus-bulbs like a warm and dry place. Wrap each in paper, exclude every particle of soil, and put in paper bags. Hang in an upper room or attic where they will not freeze.

Caladium-tubers need about the same winter treatment as dahlia-tubers, possibly wanting less moisture and more heat.

Maine State Conference of Charities.

The approaching meeting of the Maine
State Conference of Charities, to be held in Portland, Oct. 27 and 28, is of unusual interest. The address of the evening session on Wednesday evening, Nov.
1st, the Conference will be welcomed by addressess from Governor Plaisted and the Mayor of Augusta.

The opening address of the Conference and response to the addresses of welcome will be given by Rev. John H.
Quint of Brunswick, vice-president of the Conference. The address of the evening will be given by Dr. Jeffrey R.
Brackett, of the Boston School for Social Workers, a member of the Massachusetts
State Board of Charities. Dr. Brackett is recognized all over the country as an authority on Social Work. He has been lecturer on Civics and Philanthropy at John Hopkins University in Baltimore, where he has studied and received his Doctor's degree. Preceding his work in Massachusetts, he was director of the Department of Public Charities of the city of Baltimore. He has served as president of the National Conference of Charities and Corrections, which is the highest recognition of merit that can be given to a social worker by his associates.

Dr. Brackett will speak at the Conference on the subject of "The Local Almshouse; who should be in it, and what should be kept out of it." This subject is of great importance for us here in Maine because of one great evil connected with our almshouse population, viz., the keeping there of children. In many states this is forbidden by law and it ought to be so everywhere. The association with vicious people and paupers is about as demoralizing an influence as could come into the life of the children. Dr. Brackett will undoubtedly in his address in Augusta refer to this better care of our dependent children.

Other speakers of note to appear at the Conference will be Dr. E. Stagg Whitlin of the National Prison Labor Association; the Hon. Payson Smith, who will speak on Industrial Education;
Laura B. Garrett of New York, a foremost speaker on Sex Hygiene, especially reference to the education of children; Arthur H. Ham, a special investigator for the Russell Sage Foundation
as for the subject of Loan Sharks and Rem-edial Loan Associations, and many others.

There will also be an address by Arthur H. Ham, special investigator for the Russell Sage Foundation, on the subject of Loan Sharks and Remedial Loan Associations. All who are interested in work among the poor come in contact frequently with cases of gross injustice and extortionate overcharge for interest on the small loans. The laws of our state are utterly inadequate to protect these needy borrowers. Any attorney can give numerous instances which have come to his attention. The rate of interest charged sometimes mounts up to 300 and 400 per cent. The Russell Sage Foundation claims that many of the most important loan sharks in New York City do business under the laws of Maine, having offices on Congress street in the city of Portland, from which the business is nominally conducted,
although the borrower thinks he is dealing only with the agents in New York City. The laws of New York are considerably more strict than those of Maine
and have recently been strengthened.

The loan sharks formerly operated under the laws of Rhode Island, but since the enactment of stricter legislation
there, they have come to Maine. Mr.
Ham will doubtless have some interesting things to tell us along this line, and from his wide experience with work in various states, he will be in a position to suggest ways in which we can better conditions here.

The citizens of Portland have already taken steps toward remedying this evil in the best possible way, viz., by the establishing of the Peoples' Loan Company, which will loan small sums to needy families on reasonable terms.
This company is now soliciting subscriptions and stock, and will doubtless begin operations before long.

Fire Prevention Day.

There is coming to be a multitude of special days, of many sorts in this country; some of them commendable and others; seemingly rather silly. A recent addition to the long list is Fire Prevention day, and there is much to be said in its favor, for the more especially since the lesson to which it appears to be assigned by common consent is that in which fires are lighted for warmth after furnaces and heating appliances have been neglected during the summer months. A general cleaning up of waste material
about the premises, whether dwellings or stores, and careful inspection of everything connected with the being apparatus must have the effect to lessen the danger of fire loss which has for years rested more heavily upon the people of the United States than probably of any other country in the world.

Another matter which is receiving marked attention through the character of Fire Prevention day is the character of the old tenement houses and blocks in the large cities. According to a recent writer in a New York publication
there are three and a half million people in three and a half million tenement houses, and these live in "old-style" tenements—the most dangerous human habitation in the world. It is little wonder, therefore, that New York has the unenviable distinction of leading all other cities in the loss by fire. Immigration has poured into New York from early in the last century, and buildings were rapidly constructed in which the houses rapidly became tenements, but for nearly a hundred years after the beginning of the tide at the close of the Napoleonic wars there was hardly such a thing as enforcement of sufficient fire constitutive laws for such buildings.

The law of 1901 required that the tenements more than six stories in height must be fireproof throughout. Between 10 and 12 per cent was thus added to the cost and the builders fought the law, but it has been enforced, and more than 19,000 tenements stock, and more than 19,000 tenements
have been built under it.

About 980,000 people are now living in these tenements, and the statement is made that there has not been a fire in one case of 108 of them by fire. This is a record, and it is a record that the law of 1901 did not attempt to undo what had already been done. Eighty-one thousand old tenements remain, and
one thousand old tenements remain, and in a population of about 2,500,000 live in them. These present a problem for Fire Prevention day, and as to that matter,
for every day in the year.

To Have Hot Water.

Place the socket of a wall bracket lamp just high enough above a table so that the top of a hand lamp chimney will be five or six inches below it. Make an arm of round wire or small piping long enough to extend over the lamp and to this hang a picture hook, on which hang a small teakettle or pail. In this way water for the needs of the night can be kept hot without boiling, and will be ready at an instant's notice. As a lamp is necessary in a house where there is a youngster, the cost of this device will be nothing, for the blaze of a small burner will provide sufficient heat. The lamp chimney should not be nearer than two inches to the bottom of the kettle.

field was sick at her home and unable to attend court. He stated that there is more than the mere charge of assault and battery upon a little girl in this case and asked that the case be continued to the next term of court.

The defense asked for the deposition of this witness to be used as to what she might testify to in court. This the County Attorney would not agree to. The court ruled that the ends of justice might be better served if the case be continued and ordered that it be set for trial at the March term of the Supreme Court.

ABOARD A DAIRY SPECIAL.

It was the writer's good fortune the other day to make a trip of a hundred miles aboard a dairy demonstration special.

The itinerary of the special had been arranged beforehand, and at each place where stops were made crowds of interested people, mostly farmers, were present to receive the benefit of the hour's instruction given by the several members of the party.

There were four coaches, in each of which a half hour's lecture was given by as many speakers, who took up the matter of testing the cows with the Babcock test, balanced rations, barn ventilation, silos, etc., while the last half hour was devoted to giving a cow demonstration from the door of a baggage car which was equipped with an auto car and at the time referred to contained a Holstein cow with a milk record of 18,000 pounds, a Jersey bull worth $1,000 and a Jersey cow with a butter record of 500 pounds per year.

At the proper stage in the demonstrator's talk these animals were led to the door of the car and their strong points as dairy representatives pointed out and contrasted with traits and characteristics of beef animals.

Among the traits emphasized for the good dairy cow were vigor and constitution, depth of body at the heart line, a big paunch or barrel, a well developed udder extending well forward and back, large and winding milk veins, a soft pliable skin, a bright and prominent eye and a condition of flesh along the back indicating that the feed given was put into the udder in the shape of milk and not on the back in the shape of fat and flesh.

All steps made a rare degree of interest was manifested, and there is little question that scores of those who attended the lectures went home with a determination to put more brains into their dairy operations.

PUT OUT THE LIGHT.

It is hard to believe that a dairy barn could be battened so tight and have windows and doors so close fitting as to virtually put out a lantern because of a lack of oxygen, but such an occurrence was related the other day by a farmer to one of the speakers on the Iowa dairy special, which has been making a tour of the state. This chap thought at first that his work was short or the oil low, but on going outside of the barn, where the air was pure, the light revived. This fact was noticed on two other occasions, so that there was no question as to the cause of the poor light. Yet in the face of this terrific condition of affairs cows were kept housed within this stable and were expected to give a profitable milk return when they had virtually no oxygen with which to purify their blood and make milk production possible. After hearing the lecture we understand this fellow went home and put in winter between every other set of studding and inserted glass and cheesecloth alternately over every other opening. This let in the sunshine, which is the best germ killer, and admitted fresh air without making a draft. A whole lot of barns need ventilating in the above manner when the air isn't so absolutely foul that it will extinguish a lantern.

TOP GRAFTING TENDER APPLES.

As a result of observing the thriftiness and hardiness of top grafted apple trees the writer has much faith in the possibility of producing semi-tender apples of the Jonathan and Gravenstein type on hardy stocks like the Hibernian and Virginia crab in northern latitudes, where the former varieties could not be sufficiently hardy to withstand the severe winter weather. It is true that for its season there is no apple which will fetch more on the early winter markets than a juicy, well colored Wealthy, but if the two varieties mentioned could be top grafted to the rather limited list of known hardy apples northern horticulturists would be materially benefited. The writer would like to hear from any reader who has given the above plan such a trial as would demonstrate its practicability. It would seem to give much promise.

GIVE THEM A LIFT.

In latitudes where snows are deep and winter temperatures low a kindly service may be rendered some of the birds which remain and bear the rigors of the cold weather by putting out food in shrubs or trees so that they may have access to it. Nothing answers the purpose better than pieces of beef suet. If this should not be handy scraps from the table will do. The little platform is fixed and suspended from a limb screenings of other grain may be scattered there, and the little feathered friends will be very grateful for it. Such slight help as this may be the means of carrying many insect destroying birds through the season of short fare and cold nights.

PORTER.

A Comforting View.

It seems that the apple market is improving as the buyers are offering higher prices. I suppose those who sold first wish they had not been in such a hurry, but remember if you lost a few cents per barrel that he who holds his apples must lose in quantity as they grow soft and rot and also more bruises show up, and it don't take long to lose one barrel in eight or ten. NORWAY VICTIM

"The Climax."
On Thursday evening, Oct. 19th, Joseph M. Weber's novel drama, "The Climax," was presented at the Norway Opera House before a good sized audience.

The scenic artist so faithfully depicted the picture represented in the play, that the spectators imagined themselves in some picturesque spot instead of in an orchestra riser it is not on a stage, but merely some new process enabling one to see through the brick and murtar of Luigi Gollanti's humble home in New York.

The story is of a young woman, Adeline Von Hagen, who comes to New York from the middle West to study music and to develop her voice as a singer. She resides in the household of her instructor, Luigi Gollanti, and is beloved by John Raymond, a young physician of her home town. A minor operation becoming necessary to relieve her throat, it is performed by a specialist, after which she is left in Dr. Raymond's care. Previously, however, the girl had rejected both suitors in order to follow "a stage career."

Dr. Raymond employs mental suggestion to destroy the girl's ability to sing as he is opposed to her musical studies and her desire to become an opera singer. Then she agrees to marry the doctor, but on the day they are to be married her voice comes back and the doctor tells her what he did. The wedding is off but one feels when the curtain goes down that perhaps some day they may marry.

"Round Up."

Among those who left Norway, Thursday evening, October 19th, for the Round Up at Lewiston were: Arthur Easton, Edith Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Goldthwaite, Mrs. J. H. Fletcher, Nellie Allen, Vena Nelson, Harold Goldthwaite, Charles Mixer, Joe Farnum, Clarence Dunham, Homer Tabbs, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Emery, Mr. and Mrs. Boswell, William Leavitt, Jr., Clarence Parker and Guy Stevens.

"The Round Up," was presented before a large and appreciative audience at the Empire Theater. Ladys, cowboys, ranchmen, cavalrymen, venturesome men and women were among the different characters represented in this theatrical attraction. The third scene was the strongest in the play, vividly depicting the desert plain and the dramatic incident of twenty mounted riders, riding along the ledge of a cliff and the realistic battle scene gave an element of realism to the play.

The show carried twenty horses which are trained to do the various stunts required of them and the floor of the stage was covered with a rope carpet one inch thick so as to prevent the horse's shoes from cutting the floor and also to deaden all sound so that despite the bucking and prancing of the horses there is no unusual noise.

"The Round Up" had required hours of the hardest work by a crew of more than a hundred men to get everything in shipshape and the work of putting the stage in readiness began several months ago.

October Term.

The case of Wm. Cummings vs. Morvotte Cummings was continued Thursday. Dr. W. I. Merrill testified to Mr. Cummings' condition, saying that the right eyeball had been cut horizontally out of its socket. He also said that he took out pieces of the jug with which he was bit in the skull.

B. Y. Russell of South Paris testified in the case saying that Mr. Cummings worked for him in August cutting lumber and that early in the morning Cummings came to his door in a bad condition, his face out and his eye hanging out. He called a physician and the sheriff and found Morvotte Cummings in a drunken condition on the floor at the camp. He said he saw Wm. Cummings and he was not drunk. He also said that he saw no bruises on Morvotte Cummings nor any blood.

Harry D. Cole, deputy sheriff, was called and said that he found a broken jug covered with blood and a club nearby. Morvotte Cummings was asleep, only partly dressed, on the floor with no bruises. He said that he bought a pint of brandy at Sherbrook and drank it on his way down.

James S. Wright opened the case for the defense. The first witness was Morvotte Cummings. He said that he was 37 years of age and had lived in Brownville about 12 years. He said that he came from Sherbrook to South Paris and went to the hotel a d later to see James S. Wright. He then went to William Russell's and then later to the camp where his brother was. They went into the camp and talked over the affairs regarding their father's property, when William brought out a bottle of whiskey. William then set the table and got the food after that they ate. Morvotte said "We got our money, Wednesday," to which William replied "I helped get that." He said "No, you did not," and Morvotte replied that he was going out. His brother told him "No, you are not going out." Morvotte started out and the trouble ensued.

The jury was instructed that, while intoxication was no excuse for crime, they might consider that if the respondent was so intoxicated, that he did not know what he was doing, he was at the time incapable of forming an "intent" and therefore not guilty of the whole charge as given in the indictment.

The case then went before the jury who reported a verdict of "Assault and Battery."

The case of the State against Omer Bergeron and John Hughes of Rumford, by County Attorney Parker for the State and M. T. O'Brien of Portland and Attorney Bellevue of Rumford for the defense commenced Thursday afternoon.

The indictment charged Hughes with burning a building at Rumford on the 24th of last March and that Mr. Bergeron hired Hughes to set the fire before the felony was committed.

County Attorney Parker opened the case stating that the crime charged against Hughes is "arson" and that against Bergeron is of hiring Hughes to burn the building. A deed of the premises was offered as evidence.

E. S. Stearns, Esq. of Rumford was the first witness, who testified as to the location and ownership of the property.

V. A. Linnell of Rumford was an appraiser of the damage and said that the fire was between the studding and the wall of the building.

Among the witnesses were Matt McLucas of Rumford; John H. Douglass, a policeman of Rumford, who said that he rang in the alarm and then started to find Hughes but could not find him.

John Hughes, who pleaded guilty at burning the building, said that he was not working at the time of the fire and testified that Bergeron offered him $25 to burn the building.

He said Bergeron told him to get the rage soaked with kerosene and to put them in the holes and set them on fire. He said he went to Bergeron's house to get the kerosene, made the holes in the wall about 4 ft. from the floor, put in the rags, set them on fire and made a big blaze.

He ran out and the policeman and tried to put the fire. He then ran to Bergeron's house and told him he had set the fire and then left. He also said that he was advised by John Charles at Hyde Park, Mass., where he was arrested to tell the truth and that Deputy Sheriff Niles told him that he had evidence enough to convict him and that he better tell the truth about it.

The respondent, Bergeron, took the stand and testified that some two or three weeks prior to the fire John Hughes applied to him for a job but was refused; that he seemed to be angry at his failure to get even with him, Bergeron.

Bergeron said that on the night of the fire he went home about 11 o'clock and went to bed. Between two and three o'clock Hughes came to the house and wanted a chance to sleep, claiming he couldn't go home as it was so late and his father wouldn't let him in. Respondent permitted Hughes to stay in the kitchen during the night. The next morning after breakfast, Mrs. Bergeron allowed Hughes to go into the bedroom and go to bed.

At the time Hughes came to the house, respondent said he knew there was a fire but he did not know where it was. He asked Hughes if he knew and Hughes replied that he did not.

Mrs. Bergeron corroborated the story of her husband regarding the coming of Hughes to the house.

Walter S. Trumman of Norway, who was indicted with criminal assault on Bessie Flint, was tried and convicted and sentenced to five years imprisonment.

Lighter Hats, More Brains.

That the undeniable improvement in the mentality of the up-to-date woman is due to the decision in weight of her stylish headgear is the conclusion that Dr. George W. Galvin of Boston, founder of the Emergency hospital, has reached after scientific investigation.

"Many women wonder how it is that they find themselves able to do work which a few years ago they wouldn't have dreamed of attempting," said Dr. Galvin.

"Many are doing more than the mere routine of housework. And should they to test to know the reason, they need but think on the decrease in the size and consequently in the weight of their hats and they have the answer to their question."

"I consider it a significant fact that 50 stamps pushed 50 letters through the window and sweetly asked him to put the stamps on for her. He refused. Uncle Sam believes in allowing each to do his own thinking."

Some Different.

A young couple had joined hands and were about to be pronounced man and wife when the clergyman asked for the license. Imagine the consternation when the document was unfolded and it was found to permit the young man in question to hunt moose and deer. An hour later an irate couple were before the clerk where the license had been procured, demanding an explanation.

It was explained that the groom-to-be had accidentally gone to the clerk who issued hunting licenses and had not mentioned marriage.

A postmaster in Oxford county, who claims to be good natured and accommodating, reached what he considered the limit of these qualities when a purchaser of 50 stamps pushed 50 letters through the window and sweetly asked him to put the stamps on for her. He refused. Uncle Sam believes in allowing each to do his own thinking.

Peonies are Popular.

All the world may love and cultivate the peony, for it has a quality which enables many of its varieties to grow anywhere. Wherever the parcel post carries, a peony root from any garden can be sent in safety. The roots have wonderful vitality, and can be sent with confidence even a month after having been taken from the ground.

Soil and Preparation.—It goes without saying that when a plant is to remain in one place 20 years it is desirable to make the initial conditions as favorable as possible. Plants with thick, tuberous roots like the peony, must have plenty of food if they are to give the best results. The soil should be light and friable.

If the natural soil be clayey, it is better to mix sand with it. Take out the soil to a depth of at least two feet, fill with eight inches of well rotted stable manure, and on top the friable soil already referred to.

American growers all recommend planting in the fall. The object of planting in the fall is that the plants may make roots before the end of the season of growth, and that a year may thus be saved in making a peony.

Where and How to Plant.—The peony would give good results whether grown singly or in rows, or in clumps or beds. There is no handsomer border than one of peonies. They show to the best advantage if planted in clumps of two or three plants as part of the border. They must not be crowded. At least three feet must be allowed between the peony plants, and four feet is better. Where they are used for a border or a bed, other plants should be used in order to give continuity of bloom.

A good plan, I find, is to plant narcissus and lily bulbs between the peonies. The narcissus gives early bloom; then come the peonies and before they have finished blooming, the lilies have pushed their stalks above the peonies, and their blossoms last for some weeks after the peonies are done. The foliage of the peony is always beautiful, and the plants are so luxuriant that, though standing three feet apart, they give an effect of fullness to the bed.

In planting there is only one point that needs to be specially noted. The crown of the root, the eye, as it is sometimes called, should be wholly under the surface of the ground. The best results will be obtained by having two inches of soil over the crown.

The peony requires little attention during its season of growth, but it generally rewards good treatment in the fall. The injury to be feared during the summer is from storms. The splendid double flower is itself rather a heavy load even for so stout a stalk as that of the peony. Should this flower be blown over and the stalk so sharply bent as to suffer injury. Where this danger exists a hoop supported on three stakes at the height of about one and one-half feet from the ground should be put around the plant.

As to the fall treatment two objects are to be sought. The first is to afford nourishment for the next season, and the second is to guard the root—not against the winter frost for that is not an enemy which the peony fears, but against the thawing and freezing of the early spring. These objects are attained by covering the roots generally with well rotted stable manure. Let this covering be less than four inches deep, six inches is better, and in order to make sure that the whole plant is covered, let it be not less than eighteen inches across.

Competition in Cream.

The rightful claimant to cream in almost any territory is the local creamery. Built by local capital and run by local men, it is a valuable asset around which the prosperity of many a section centers. Patrons are given special benefits and privileges, as in the marketing of various farm products aside from the milk.

When outside buyers for centralized creameries come in, at once a fight begins, and the local plant often has to take up cream shipping in order to maintain its output. The offer of a cent or two a pound more for its attractive dairymen and they will desert the local plant, forgetting that in the long run their real advantage lies with it. When the outside buyer has crowded the local out, his price is likely to fall to the old figure.

Though a creamery uses large quantities of water, its water supply, a matter of great importance, is often overlooked. The source of the water should be carefully examined, as none but the purest should be used, even though it costs the dairyman more to get it to the creamery. Impure water, if not actually dangerous, is one of the greatest sources of contamination. It spoils the butter washed in it, and infects the cans, vats and other utensils with bacteria enough to contaminate the cream placed in them. The supply of water should be abundant at all times in all parts of the creamery. —[Fairfield Journal.

Effects of Silage on the Flavor of Milk. Prof. W. J. Fraser of the Illinois experiment station recently made some interesting observations on the effect of silage on the flavor and odor of milk.

The dairy herd at the university was divided into two lots, one of which was fed 40 pounds of corn ensilage per cow daily, while the other was fed only clover hay and grain. The milk from each lot was standardized to 4 per cent, and otherwise cared for in exactly the same manner. Samples from each lot were submitted to 322 persons for an opinion as to any difference in the flavor of the two samples, anything objectionable about either, and any preference.

The results showed that 60 per cent. preferred silage milk, 29 per cent. had no choice. When the silage was fed at the time of milking, the percentage in favor of silage milk was much higher than when the silage was fed one hour before milking. Five samples of each lot were sent to milk experts in different cities, three of whom preferred silage milk, one non-silage, and one had no choice.

No complaint was received from a hotel to which silage milk was delivered for a period of one month. The whole, it was apparent that the greater number of people were able to distinguish between the two kinds of milk, but found nothing objectionable about either kind. —[Fairfield Journal.

Catarrh Sufferers

If You Don't Know About Hyomei Try It at Frank Kimball's Risk.

Nearly every reader of the ADVERTISER has read about Hyomei, but many of them continue to suffer from catarrh just because they do not exactly understand just what Hyomei is.

To these sufferers Frank Kimball, Proprietor of Noyes Drug Store, says, "You don't have to know anything about Hyomei except that you breathe it and that it does not contain cocaine, or opium, or any harmful drug."

You can find out all about Hyomei without taking any chances whatever. Just get an outfit today, read the simple instructions, give it a fair trial and then if you are not willing to say that it is the best remedy for catarrh you have ever used, Frank Kimball will gladly return your money.

A complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00. Extra bottles, 50 cents. 41-43

Making the Map of Maine.

The State of Maine and the United States Geological Survey are together spending thousands of dollars in constructing a great topographic map of the State. This map when finished will be of such dimensions that few, if any, bails in Maine will be big enough to hang it in. It will be about 33 feet high by 20 feet wide, and a separate atlas sheet is published for each quadrangle surveyed. Twenty-seven quadrangles have already been surveyed and the maps published. These are located mostly in the southern part of the State, extending across it. During the present season a United States Geological Survey party, under Hersey Munroe, a topographic engineer, has been mapping the Bethel quadrangle, the Bryant Pond quadrangle, and the Buckfield quadrangle, in Oxford and Androscoggin counties. These quadrangles are traversed by the Maine Central Railroad and the Grand Trunk Railway. Each quadrangle contains 218 72 square miles. Mr. Munroe has been assisted by E. Kier as a S. J. Jackson of the Geological Survey, and by field assistants, and has completed the work on the Buckfield and Bryant Pond quadrangles. The work on the Bethel quadrangle is well under way.

Almost everyone in Maine knows the value of the Government's topographic surveys. The topographic map shows every physical characteristic of the area surveyed—every hill, slope, valley, stream, and the altitude of every point. All the works of man are also portrayed by the surveyors in their exact relative position—the roads, the railroads, the bridges, even the houses. Any farmer who buys one of these maps can pick out his home and note its elevation above sea level as readily as the most experienced engineer. The map is useful to the farmer, to the tourist and huntsman, to the automobilist, and to the private surveyor or engineer. In fact, to everyone. Thousands of these topographic atlas sheets of the quadrangles in Maine have been sold, but the demand is constantly increasing. The maps are indispensable in engineering development of any character. They have been well termed the mother maps of the country.

In accordance with an act of Congress, the topographic atlas sheets are sold by the Director of the Geological Survey, at Washington, at the nominal rate of 5 cents a copy, or $3 a hundred if at least 100 copies of any map or maps are purchased. They are also sold by dealers in a dozen or more of the larger cities of Maine. The survey of the Buckfield, Bryant Pond, and Bethel quadrangles is being carried on cooperatively by the State and the Federal Survey, each paying one-half of the field expenses.

The Geological Survey at Washington also publishes an index map showing the quadrangles which have been mapped in Maine, and a copy of this will be sent free to anyone requesting it.

There are many nuts of all kinds this fall, an indication of a long, severe winter, it is said.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for much sickness and suffering, therefore, if kidney trouble is permitted to continue, serious results are most likely to follow. Your other organs may need attention, but your kidneys most, because they do most and should have attention first. Therefore, when you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. A trial will convince you of its great merit.

The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest because its remarkable health restoring properties have been proven in thousands of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best.

Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root—if you do you will be disappointed.

The Cause of Colds and a Safe Cure.

A common cause of many colds is the sudden checking of the unconscious perspiration by exposure to a change of temperature. Colds, whether taking the form of Coryza with sneezing, running nose, and perhaps sore throat, or with chills and feverish symptoms, should never be neglected in the earliest stages, serious illness often results from such neglect.

It is well to get early to bed, to get the body well warmed, and most important to have the bowels move freely. There is no safer or better remedy to use at the beginning of a cold than "L. F." Atwood's medicine. Two to four teaspoonfuls will quickly relieve congested conditions, drive out impurities from the system and ward off further trouble. Always keep a bottle in the house. Any dealer will supply you for thirty-five cents. If you have never used them, write today for a free sample to the L. F. Medicine Co., Portland, Maine.

SOUTH WATERFORD.
Hamlin-Hove.
A pretty wedding took place Tuesday, Oct. 17th at 1 p. m. at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Geo. A. Wiley, Worcester, Mass., when Florence Isabella Hamlin formerly of South Waterford was united in marriage to Joseph Howe of Worcester, Mass. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Joseph K. Mason, pastor of the Universalist church, the double ring service being used.
The bride was attired in a beautiful gown of white messaline and carried a bouquet of white roses and was attended by little Ruth Hamlin as flower girl, Caterer S. J. Ross served the wedding dinner, after which the happy couple left for a trip of two weeks to be spent at Washington, D. C. and other places of interest in the south.
On their return they will reside at 29 King street, Worcester, Mass. The wedding presents were numerous and beautiful, consisting of cut glass, silver and a purse of money. The houses were tastefully decorated with cut flowers and potted plants.

THE GRANGE MEETING.
The last meeting of Bear Mountain grange was officiated and entertained by the Sisters. The official chairs were occupied as follows:
M. Mrs. Helen Rice.
O. Mrs. Edith McIntire.
Sec. Mrs. Belle Haggood.
Treas. Mrs. Clara Hamlin.
S. Anna Hamlin.
A. S. Mrs. Lillian Miller.
C. Mrs. Emma Granger.
L. A. S. Edith Miller.
C. Mrs. Edith Miller.

A notable feature of the business session was the reading of an official letter signed by the secretary of the grange, which had been previously authorized by a unanimous vote of the members, addressed to Hon. Obadiah Gardner, congratulating him on his appointment by the Governor to serve out the unexpired term as the successor of Hon. Wm. P. Frye in the U. S. senate.
The letter contained appropriate allusions to the many years of eminently loyal service of Senator Gardner as Master of the State grange and was creditable to the secretary as a fraternal expression of the sentiments of the patrons of Bear Mountain.
The entertainment which followed the business session was excellent throughout as follows:
Singing.....Sister Ella Miller
Reading.....Sister Charlotte Morse
Piano solo.....Sister Charlotte Morse
Mrs. Jennie Sanderson and Carrie Sanderson.
Encore.....Sister Charlotte Morse
Recitation.....Sister Charlotte Morse
Sister Lizzie Hall in character and costume of an old lady with organ accompaniment.
A piece of good expression and acting.
Choir.....Sister Charlotte Morse
Reading.....Sister Charlotte Morse
Piano solo.....Sister Charlotte Morse
Encore.....Sister Charlotte Morse
Sisters Sias and Coe as editor and assistant editor.
This was a great literary feature of the program, bright and able in all departments. Its items of general and local news were well edited and its personal notes contained many amusing bits.
Double duet, Beautiful moonlight.....Sister Sanderson and Sister Sanderson.
Sister Sanderson and Sister Sanderson.
The musical gem of the evening.
Accompanist.....Charlotte Morse
The question for discussion was: How to treat a husband. It was responded to by Sisters: Miller, Riggs, Haggood, McIntire, Hamlin and Sias, and was a consensus of honest, careful expression based on the grand principles of the Golden Rule of fair play and equal rights.
The next meeting in two weeks will be the Grange's night with an oyster supper, committee, Bros. Sias, Pike, Plummer and Riggs.
J. W. Weston of Harrison was in town Tuesday.
The apple crop is reported to be larger than was anticipated.
Mrs. W. W. Watson came home last week from her visit to Haverhill.
Apple barrel making by Haggood and Willard closed on Saturday last for the season.
W. K. Hulin is erecting a spacious addition to his lower mill and box manufactory.
It is reported that Haskell's cider mill is to be soon in operation with a gasoline engine for the motor power.
By far the most beautiful scene in this corner of the town is of the twin babies of Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn Saunders out in the sunlight nestling in their little double phaeton and smiling at all who stop to admire them.
